Headteacher's Blog

I hope you've all recovered from last week's heat-wave!

As you know, we had our long awaited Ofsted inspection last week. Once we have been informed of the outcome and received the final report, we shall of course be sharing this with you. As we are racing towards the end of the school year, this may not be until September.

Next Thursday morning the children will be spending time in their new classroom with their new teacher. We shall write to you next week informing you who this will be. We are not mixing any classes this year so the children will travel to their new class as they are currently. As explained previously, we will have some new teachers joining our team in September and they will be present next week. There will be an opportunity for parents to meet their child's next teacher at our Open Evening on Wednesday 12th July. This is an open session (no appointments necessary) from 3.30-5pm. You will have received your child's end of year report by this time too, so will have an opportunity to speak to your child's current teacher on this evening. I shall, of course, be available too.
