

<https://www.rspb.org.uk/fun-and-learning/for-kids/facts-about-nature/>

Facts about nature

What do birds eat in the wild?

What different habitats have we got in the UK?

Use the link above to find out ...

Learn about habitats

Learn about habitats

Cliffs and beaches

The sights, sounds and smells of a seabird colony in spring and summer are enough to overload the senses.

Woodlands

There are always things to see and do in this magical habitat, whether you're crunching through fallen leaves in or searching for shy wildlife in hidden glades.

Urban and suburban

It's not just humans that live in towns and cities. Even in the middle of the 'concrete jungles', wildlife lives alongside us.

Learn about birds

Learn about birds

What do birds eat?

Next time you watch the birds in your garden, don't just look at the ones queuing up for the birdfeeders.

Aren't birds of prey brilliant!

Read on to find out more about our relationship with birds of prey - from the awesome osprey to the brilliant barn owl.

About blackbirds

I see a bird with a bright orange beak, feathers of black with brown legs and feet...it's a blackbird!

Make your own facts file with the items that interested you the most.

I

Description:

Habitat:

Diet:

Other interesting facts:

